French Hotel Industry Performance

December 2015

Membre de Deloitte.

The year ends in the red

As unfortunately feared, the month of December failed to reverse the trend observed throughout 2015, which ended on a mixed note. Occupancy dropped sharply in all categories in Paris and the Ile-de-France region as a whole, as the impacts of the terrorist attacks were strongly felt. The final month of the year was also challenging elsewhere in France. However, the relative weighting of December compared to the rest of the year meant that the overall good performances achieved up till then in regional France held.

Although the major events hosted in Ile-de-France throughout November and December doubtless helped limit the damage, the November 13th attacks had a brutal impact on hotel demand in Ile-de-France in December. Occupancy dropped by between -15,4% and -24,3% depending on the category in Paris, and in most of the Ile-de-France region, too – except in those areas able to take advantage of COP21. The majority of hoteliers reasonably decided not to slash prices. However, although average rates remained generally stable over the period, the decline in occupancy automatically dragged down RevPAR. Consequently, with two terrorist episodes and a rather lacklustre summer, notably for Midscale hotels, Paris finished the year on a low note, with a fairly significant drop observed in all categories. The Upscale segment was the only one able to generally maintain Rooms Revenue, with a drop of 0,7% “only”.

Relatively speaking, the same situation could be observed throughout the rest of France in December. The Côte d’Azur and other regions saw a fall in RevPAR, essentially due to a drop in average rates. Upscale hotels on the Côte d’Azur were the only ones to record a rise in RevPAR, thanks to a significant increase in occupancy. In one way or another, these observations must be put into perspective: on the one hand, December 2014 was a generally good month on the Côte d’Azur and in regional France; and on the other, occupancy is generally low in December, compared to the summer months. December did not, then, call into question the encouraging results previously recorded. The Côte d’Azur saw an increase in RevPAR of between +4,1% and +13,5% depending on the category. RevPAR in regional France also grew.

Lastly, Super-budget hotels managed to maintain rate growth throughout the year, which compensated for the VAT hike introduced at the start of 2014 that was not passed onto guests at the time. However, in a strongly competitive environment, this resulted in a drop in occupancy, and consequently in RevPAR (-1%) in 2015.

Information

Definitions

Occupancy Rate (OR) : Rooms sold divided by rooms available multiplied by 100.

Rooms Available : The number of rooms times the number of days in the period.

Average Daily Rate (ADR) : Room revenue divided by rooms sold.

Revenue per Available Room (RevPAR) : Room revenue divided by rooms available.

ADR and RevPAR are expressed in Euros, excluding VAT

Categories

Luxury Hotels: France's most prestigious hotels that distinguish themselves through their exceptional location, building and design, as well their outstanding product and service quality. Highly reputed, these establishments cater to a particularly discerning clientele.

Upscale Hotels: Hotels operating at the higher end of the market and consequently offering a wide range of amenities. These establishments are less prestigious than Luxury Hotels and cater to a wider range of guests.

Midscale Hotels: Veritable bridge between higher category and entry-level hotels, Midscale Hotels benefit from a wide range of facilities and amenities, but to a lesser extent than Upscale Hotels.

Budget Hotels: Hotels that offer a restricted range of facilities and amenities. Budget hotels primarily target those guests particularly preoccupied by value for money.

Super Budget Hotels: Hotels that offer a 'no frills' approach, with a very limited range of services. Price is the key decision-factor for guests.
